Sizing Guide

We recommend you take your actual body measurements because they are more accurate than over your clothes. Our garments have added stretch so that they will conform to your body.

You may wish to have someone help with this.

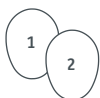

Hips: Standing feet together, measure around the fullest part of your bottom and over your hip bones.

Incontinence: The stretch in the undergarments will accommodate light to medium incontinence pads in your regular size. With heavy incontinence pads, we recommend measuring yourself with the incontinence pads in place for the most accurate sizing.

If you require a size outside our range please contact us to discuss.

Disclaimer: The Delloch Hip Protection System is designed to help prevent a fall related hip fracture. It is important that all the procedures for applying the pad in the correct position as outlined in the Quick Guide are followed in order to prevent a hip fracture as a result of a fall. However while this system can help lessen the severity of the impact of the fall, it does not guarantee that this will prevent a hip fracture.
